With the subject mentioned discussed about the pediatric palliative care, Pediatric palliative care (PPC) is a holistic approach aimed at improving the quality of life for children with serious, life-limiting illnesses and their families. It begins at diagnosis and continues alongside curative or life-prolonging treatments, addressing physical, emotional, social, and spiritual needs. PPC requires compassionate, interdisciplinary care to ensure dignity and comfort for terminally ill children and support for their families. Nurses play a central role in navigating ethical complexities and facilitating holistic care.
